

Reflection week six

The sixth week we had one scheduled supervision session and two group meetings that we had scheduled ourselves.

- What do I want to learn or understand better?

Last week we got the feedback that we should improve and update our KPIs which I was assigned to structure. We already had most of the data from our standup meeting channel in Discord so I just had to create the tables and graphs for the velocity- and burndown chart. I also got to comment and somewhat clean the code, which I thought was great because it helped me understand the code structure even more.

- How can I help someone else, or the entire team, to learn something new?

This week I understood the code structure better as mentioned, therefore I also saw some improvements or changes that could be done. So I pitched these to the group, some were fairly simple like redundant code or duplicated code. We came to the conclusion that we should put more focus into this for the next sprint since we now are done with all the core functionalities.

- What is my contribution towards the team's use of Scrum?

This week I was not PO or scrum master but a team member. But during the sprint planning one of the PO's couldn't make the meeting so we continued with just one PO and the group collectively decided upon what task we should focus on. Which worked out fine.

- What is my contribution towards the team's deliveries?

We had a really smooth sprint this week . The main task was to implement the search function for the map where the user could search for a location and see where the closest blood donation center is. This task was also done fairly easy, therefore we could put more focus into KPI and comment on the code, which I did.

The first iteration of the burndown chart was done with the wrong parameters unfortunately. So when I presented this the PO's saw this and questioned it, making me realize that it was wrong. But directly after the meeting i sat done to fix this which didn't take any longer than one hour thankfully.

I would also say that the group dynamic has improved from the first weeks, at least in the sense that more people in the group contribute during meetings.
